VOLUME III OF "ADVENTURERS OF PURSE AND PERSON, VIRGINIA"
Available by 03/15/07

The third and concluding volume of ADVENTURERS OF PURSE AND PERSON, VIRGINIA, 1607-1624/25 is now at the printer's. Edited by John Frederick Dorman, the leading expert on colonial Virginia genealogy, this series traces the descendancies of the first generation of individuals who landed at Jamestown. Now in its fourth edition, this highly regarded collection of genealogies, prepared under the auspices of the Order of the First Families of Virginia, is the authoritative work on its subject. Volume III, covering settlers with surnames in the alphabetical sequence from Reynolds to Zouche, traces many of these Virginia progenitors for six generations beyond their arrival in Virginia. Volume III will be printed in a similar cloth edition to the preceding volumes and will list at $89.50 plus postage and handling.

If ADVENTURERS OF PURSE AND PERSON is new to you, here is some background information on the first two volumes in the series:

Membership in the Order of First Families of Virginia, which is by invitation, is limited to lineal descendants of someone who aided in the establishment of the first permanent English colony--Virginia, 1607-1624/5. All such members are in the direct line of either (1) stockholders in the Virginia Company who came to Virginia between 1607 and 1625 and had progeny, or did not come to Virginia but had grandchildren who did; or (2) immigrants to Virginia between the years in question who left descendants. The first group is referred to as "Adventurers of Purse"; the second, "Adventurers of Person." A grand total of 109 individuals have been authenticated in both categories.

Since its establishment in 1912, the Order of First Families of Virginia has striven "to promote historical, biographical, and genealogical researches concerning Virginia history during the period when she was the only one of the thirteen original colonies." The Order has collected genealogical information on an ongoing basis; however, its principal mechanism for disseminating this early 17th-century Virginia genealogical scholarship has been through its book, ADVENTURERS OF PURSE AND PERSON, VIRGINIA, 1607-1624/5. First issued in 1956, this work had gone through three editions by 1987. To mark the 400th anniversary of the founding of colonial Jamestown, the Order asked John Frederick Dorman, its official genealogist and the leading authority on colonial Virginia ancestry, to prepare a fourth edition.

While the first three editions covered four generations of Virginia founding families, the fourth edition expands the coverage to six--a monumental achievement. The sheer scope of the new edition required that it be published in three large, indexed volumes. Volume One, covering Adventurers with surnames A-F, was published in 2004. The second volume (families G-P) was published in 2005 and currently is being reprinted. Volume Three is scheduled to publish in mid-March, in anticipation of the 400th anniversary celebration of the founding of Jamestown.

The foundation of ADVENTURERS OF PURSE AND PERSON is the famous "Muster" of January-February 1624/5--essentially a census taken by the Royal Commission, which succeeded the Virginia Company, to determine the extent and composition of the Jamestown settlements. The Muster, which is reproduced in entirety in Volume One, names about 1,200 persons, of whom approximately 150 are shown in this work to have left descendants to the sixth generation. In addition to the Muster, this work builds on the investigations of dozens of scholars, correcting, revising, and supplementing the best genealogical scholarship of the past half century. New discoveries, newly available information, and a further re-evaluation of evidence concerning previously accepted relationships have led, in some instances, to wholesale changes in the accepted genealogies.

Whereas Volume One concerns 52 families from A through F, Volume Two covers 51 families, covering the letters G through P, that were established either by settlers of Virginia prior to 1625 or by members of the Virginia Company whose descendants came to Virginia later. Volume Two identifies 7,684 individual descendants resident in Virginia (or subsequently in other states), and its index contains 20,000 name, place, and subject entries.

Suffice it to say, if you are into 17th-century Virginia ancestry, it doesn't get any better than ADVENTURERS OF PURSE AND PERSON. Genealogical Publishing Company is honored to be the publisher of this new fourth edition of a work that is nothing less than the bedrock of colonial Virginia genealogy.

MORE FEBRUARY RELEASES from Clearfield Company

THE GERMAN IMMIGRATION from New York Province into Pennsylvania

This is the story of the famous Tulpehocken settlement in Berks County, northwest of Philadelphia, which was spearheaded by John Conrad Weiser (1696-1760). The author of this work discusses the negotiations leading to the settlement, the Palatine style of settlement, efforts to construct the first churches and schools, Indian wars, and the founding of towns and cities such as Wernersville, Sheridan, Myerstown, Lebanon, and Rehrersburg. Special consideration is given to the lives and homesteads of the Palatine patriarchs Weiser, Daniel Steinmetz, Isaac Levan, John Caspar Stoever, Reverend Tobias Wagner, Henry Melchior Muhlenberg, and others.

FAMILY DISEASES: Are You at Risk?

Written in a popular style, in language few of us will find difficult to understand, this ground-breaking work examines the genetics revolution and its implications for your health; it discusses genetic diseases and whether you and your family may be at risk; and it explores your mental and behavioral roots--your genetic susceptibility to manic depression, for example, or to alcoholism--all in the framework of ancestry and family health history.

THE DOUGLAS REGISTER. Being a Detailed Register of Births, Marriages and Deaths as Kept by the Rev. William Douglas, from 1750 to 1797. [With] An Index of Goochland Wills and Notes on the French Huguenot Refugees who Lived in Manakin-Town [Virginia]

The celebrated DOUGLAS REGISTER is an indispensable compilation of births, marriages, and deaths covering the period from about 1750 to 1797, with some miscellaneous records going back to 1705. The registers are for the parishes of St. James Northam (Dover Church) and King William, but they concern individuals who were residents of the Virginia counties of Fluvanna, Goochland, Louisa, Orange, and Spotsylvania. The book further contains lists of Huguenot settlers at Manakin-Town (King William Parish) and an index of Goochland County wills, 1728 to 1840.

WHERE TO LOOK for Hard-to-Find German-Speaking Ancestors in Eastern Europe

In this work, the late Bruce Brandt and his father, Edward, provide the surname of every German-speaking individual who appears in 13 authoritative histories--11 of them written in German--that document the massive emigration of Germanic individuals to Eastern Europe. In all, this work lists 19,720 surnames of German-speaking ancestors who emigrated to Russia, Poland, Romania, and elsewhere in Eastern Europe.

A HISTORY OF ORANGE COUNTY, VIRGINIA

This is the standard history of Orange County, Virginia, most of whose records have perished. While there are chapters on county courthouses, churches, people and houses, the Germanna Colony, and Orange County's participation in the French and Indian War, the Revolution, and the Civil War, the genealogical strength of the book lies in its copious appendices. These include a list of persons who imported themselves or were imported into the county between 1736 and 1756, the Orange County census of 1782, and rosters of Orange County men in the Revolution, the War of 1812, and the Civil War.

INDIAN WILLS, 1911-1921. Records of the Bureau of Indian Affairs: Volumes Three & Four

In accordance with federal statutes enacted in 1910 and 1913, the Law and, subsequently, the Probate Divisions of the Bureau of Indian Affairs were responsible for determining the heirs of deceased Indian trust allottees. Ultimately, Native Americans submitted more than 2,500 pages of wills and probate records to the Bureau. These records span the period 1911 to 1921 and, with a few exceptions, pertain to Indian families living in the Plains and several western states.

Mr. Jeff Bowen, who has been transcribing the aforesaid wills for publication, has now added two additional volumes, bringing the total volumes transcribed in this series of Native American source records to four. The author, who was responsible for having the National Archives microfilm the collection, has here transcribed nearly 200 additional wills for these volumes. As a rule, the documents identify the names of the testator, residence, heirs, a description of any real estate transferred in the will, names of executors and witnesses, and other particulars commonly found in probate records. Members of the following tribes predominate in the latest volumes in the series: Apache, Chippewa, Coeur d'Alene, Comanche, Crow, Kiowa, Klamath, Omaha, Osage, Pawnee, Ponca, Quapaw, Uintah and Ouray, Umatilla, Ute, Wichita, and Winnebago. In all, genealogists will discover references to about 6,000 individuals in these pages, every one of whom is referenced in the complete name index at the back of each volume.

SETTLERS BY THE LONG GREY TRAIL. Some Pioneers of Old Augusta County [Virginia] (Temporarily out of print)

Many of the early Valley of Virginia settlers resided on or near the Long Grey Trail, and the author, J. Houston Harrison, brings the full weight of his acumen to bear on the Valley settlements, more especially on that part of Augusta County later formed into Rockingham. There was perhaps no family more intimately associated with the early history of Rockingham County than the Harrisons and their connections, the county seat itself being named for one of them. Appropriately, then, this work sets forth a detailed genealogy of the Harrisons of Augusta and their Harrison cousins throughout Virginia and in large parts of the U.S. and Britain. The author also traces the ancestry of about 50 other families who settled in this area, as well as provides articles on colonial and Indian wars and the Revolution, documentary accounts of political upheaval and transition, analyses of Virginia Valley migrations, including German, Scotch-Irish, and Pennsylvanian migrations, and sketches of early churches, militia, and courts.

U.S. TERRITORIAL LAND RECORDS

Working with land records of the young American country can be a complicated affair. If you are hunting for your ancestors among land records of the late 18th and early 19th centuries, here are terms you are almost certain to run across. The "entry" (also known as the "petition" or "application") was the first step in the land acquisition process. It was filed by a person (the "grantee") hoping to obtain a land grant. If that person's application was approved, he/she received a "warrant" directing that the land granted be laid out. The grantee then presented his/her "warrant" at the colonial land office, and the land was surveyed, mapped, and described in writing. Now, the grantee could take possession of his/her land and receive a patent, securing his/her title. The patent "was documentary evidence of title to land and is probably the land-grant document most often preserved" among early records.

If the variety of terms used in land records is not complex enough, the consolidation of the national domain from the end of the American Revolution to the ratification of the Constitution certainly is. From 1785 on, as it became safer to settle in the West, government and private landed interests (read "speculators") from Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, and Virginia were quick to grab a portion for themselves. Eventually, all the territory that became Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin was returned to the federal public domain and was laid out in accordance with the rectangular grid system prescribed by the federal Land Ordinance of 1785. The land records for Florida and the states established from the Louisiana Purchase of 1803 are the products of a similar history and, in some cases, must be translated from Spanish or French.

The peculiarities of official land policy--owing to the claims of the aforementioned states, Revolutionary War veterans seeking the bounty lands their service entitled them to, and the U.S. government itself, to name just three--may require the genealogist to look in a number of places for an Ohio, Mississippi, or Indiana ancestor.

One of the first sources of land records the researcher should consult is Clifford Neal Smith's four-volume FEDERAL LAND SERIES (originally published in five parts). Volumes 1 and 3 of this work, in the aggregate, calendar all assignments of land records recorded by all federal land offices in the "Old Northwest" and Southeast territorial districts of the U.S. (excluding war bounties and land company sales) from 1788 and 1814. These volumes are arranged in chronological order, according to the assignment of tracts, followed by indexes to names, tracts, and subjects. Volume 2 picks up all persons assigned land by the U.S. government from 1799 to 1835 on the basis of their Revolutionary War service. The final volume, originally published in two parts, concerns non-federal bounty land warrants issued in the Virginia Military District of Ohio to over 22,000 persons based on Revolutionary War service. One of the great virtues of this set is that it names and follows the movements of persons who lived in sparsely populated sections of the new American nation BEFORE they would appear in the federal census.

In all, the FEDERAL LAND SERIES identifies 50,000 individuals found among early American land records. Out of print for much of 2006, the FEDERAL LAND SERIES is available once again from www.genealogical.com.

NEW ENGLAND ANCESTORS ON CD-ROM

The surviving records of colonial New England are the most complete and best organized of all American colonial records. Even better, because of the way colonial New England was settled--town-by-town--New Englanders tend to be related to one another. For example, the great genealogist James Savage was of the opinion that "nineteen-twentieths of the people of these New England colonies in 1775 were descendants of those found here in 1692, and probably seven-eighths of them were offspring of the settlers before 1642." The upshot of these trends is that if your research uncovers a single New England ancestor chances are excellent you'll find MANY New England ancestors. And nowhere else will you find a better collection of New England ancestors than on our CDs, which are based on the most outstanding collections of New England source records and compiled genealogies in the business. Here is a sampling of regional CDs for New England:

NEW ENGLAND FAMILIES #2

This Family Archive CD contains electronically searchable text of the First and Third series of William Cutter's popular compendium, "New England Families, Genealogical and Memorial." The eight volumes that make up these two distinct series contain about 2,000 genealogies and refer to approximately 20,000 related individuals.

EARLY MAINE AND NEW HAMPSHIRE SETTLERS

The books featured on this CD range all across the genealogical landscape. They include census records, wills, probate records, military records, gravestone inscriptions, and local histories, altogether naming approximately 330,000 individuals! Probably the most important work found here is the Noyes, Libby, and Davis masterpiece, "Genealogical Dictionary of Maine and New Hampshire," which presents genealogical data on every family established in Maine and New Hampshire before 1699. Along with the 1790 federal censuses of Maine and New Hampshire, the books on this CD give names and ages of family members, places of residence, dates and details of vital events, military connections, estate records, details concerning immigration, and personal characteristics.

ENGLISH ORIGINS OF NEW ENGLAND FAMILIES

This Family Archive CD contains hundreds of articles that were originally published in "The New England Historical and Genealogical Register" and subsequently collected and reprinted by GPC in six volumes under the title "English Origins of New England Families." Treating over 1,500 families and referencing 150,000 individuals, this work contains all the immigrant origin data published in the first 137 volumes of the prestigious "Register." It is interesting to note that almost all living Americans with colonial Yankee forebears descend from several of the 1,500 immigrants covered in this work.

RESOLUTIONS, LAWS, AND ORDINANCES Relating to the Officers and Soldiers of the Revolution

This rare and little-known government publication is a synopsis of all the Acts of Congress relating to the promises made by Congress to the officers and soldiers of the Revolutionary Army up to the year 1836. The significance of the work to genealogists lies in the fact that the hundreds of Congressional enactments printed here, both large and small, contain the names of the soldiers or their heirs who applied for relief under the terms of each of the special Acts. For a variety of reasons, veterans may not have received arrears of pay, may not have been issued their promised half pay for life or their widows and orphans their seven years' pay, or they may not have taken up their bounty land. Thus, years later, either they or their heirs applied to Congress for satisfaction of their claims, which were dealt with by Acts and Resolutions of Congress.

WHAT CAN'T BRAVE AMERICANS ENDURE? The New Jersey Infantry at the Valley Forge Encampment

This work marks Joseph Lee Boyle's second book dedicated to resurrecting the identities of the heroes of the six-month encampment of the Continental Army at Valley Forge in 1777-1778. His first book, "Fire Cake and Water," concerns the Connecticut soldiers who were among the 30,000 individuals at the beleaguered Valley Forge encampment. This second book is composed essentially of an alphabetical list of some 2,500 New Jersey soldiers abstracted from Revolutionary War muster and payrolls at the National Archives. Each patriot is identified by name, rank, date and term of enlistment or commission, names of regiment and company, and a variety of supporting details, such as date of furlough or discharge, when wounded, when and where promoted, etc.

NEW YORK COLONIAL MUSTER ROLLS, 1664-1775. In Two Volumes

Originally published as appendices, or supplements, to the "Annual Report of the State Historian of the State of New York" for the years 1897 and 1898, these two volumes contain transcriptions of all colonial muster rolls on deposit in the state capital at Albany for the years 1664 to 1775. This work identifies approximately 30,000 men who served in the various militia companies during the period before the Revolution, including privateers and free-lancers such as Captain William Kidd. At a minimum, each militiaman is noted in connection with his date of enlistment, company and company commander, rank, and place of residence. More often than not, information provided in the muster rolls also includes such important items as place of birth, age, occupation, height, and physical description.
