"IF YOUR ANCESTOR OWNED LAND, THEN THERE'S A DEED," by William Dollarhide

Genealogy Rule #23: Locating the county where your ancestor lived is the first step in finding records about the time he was hauled into court for shooting his neighbor's dog, threatening the census taker with a shotgun, or making illegal corn whiskey behind the barn.

A 90-Percent Chance

Since the first colonists came to this continent, land ownership has always been an important part of our American society. As an example, nine out of ten adult white males in America owned land before 1850. Even today, the figure is more than 50 percent.

With this nearly universal coverage before 1850, and since genealogical research starts getting more difficult about that time, it's a wonder that family historians are not using land-ownership records more often to solve their genealogical puzzles.

For instance, did you know that there is a surname index to virtually every land owner in America since the early 1600s--an index that is more complete than any head-of-household census index ever compiled? And did you know that you have a 90-percent chance of finding your ancestor in that land-ownership index? The land-ownership index is not combined into a single name list. There are thousands of them. Usually called a "Grantee-Grantor" index, they can be found in the courthouse of any of the 3,141 counties in the U.S. Together, they comprise the largest index naming residents of the U.S., particularly for the period 1629 to 1860.

There are few indexes used by genealogists that offer a 90-percent chance of finding the right person. Even today, a modern telephone directory gives the names of only those households with a publicly listed telephone number. A recent study in Los Angeles County, California, for instance, revealed that about 20 percent of the telephone numbers are unlisted numbers. Yet there is a surname index for Los Angeles County that gives the names of 90 percent of the heads of household of that county during the 1850s and later.

Let's take the 1840 census as an example. In 1840, the names of the heads of household are all that are shown. But if you were to look at the Grantee/Grantor index for the same county, you may discover that one household could have more than one landowner. Say you find in the census that the head of household is John Smith, Jr. But what you don't know is that living in the same household is John Smith, Sr., and maybe even John Smith, III, and each of them owns a piece of property. Only John Smith, Jr. is listed in the 1840 head of household census, but the Grantee/Grantor index lists all three landowners.

We genealogists eventually recognize the significance of land ownership as we attempt to locate records of our ancestors. But, at first blush, we may not see the importance of land records because they do not seem to give us the vital genealogical facts we are after, i.e., names of parents, dates, children, and so on.

But genealogists who dig deeper into the land records will discover that land grants and deeds can provide evidence of the places where an ancestor lived and for how long, when he moved into or moved out of a county, and, in many cases, a surprising amount of detailed information about a person.

Why Land Records?

Here are three good reasons why land records are valuable for genealogical research:

1. The Odds Are Good. Since 90 percent of the adult white male population owned land before 1850, land grants and deeds provide an excellent way of finding an ancestor in local records. Deeds are recorded at the county level; when property is sold, a deed is recorded at the local courthouse. It is a protection to both buyer and seller that the land being transferred is properly recorded. There are exceptions, such as a deed held by a private party and never recorded--which is every title insurance agent's worst nightmare. But deeds are almost always recorded at the courthouse of the county wherein the land is located.
2. Land Records Are More Complete than Other Records. Land records such as property tax lists, deeds and deed indexes, and the written transcripts of real estate transactions all go back further in time than any other type of record we use in genealogical research. The earliest records in Europe, other than those recorded for the royal courts, are land records. For example, the Domesday Books--which are property tax lists--were gathered for William the Conqueror in the 11th century, and they are the earliest English records in which a common farmer or tradesman may be listed by name. Certain Scandinavian land records date back to 950 AD. In America, land ownership has always been important, so much so that whenever a courthouse was destroyed by fire or natural disaster the deed records--proof of land ownership--were reconstructed by local authorities soon after. For example, deed records were reconstructed for several counties after General Sherman's troops burned courthouse after courthouse in the South during the Civil War.

3. Land Records often Reveal the Name of a Man's Wife. The English common law system of "dower rights" for a widow was followed in the American colonies and continued into the 19th century. Dower rights entitled a widow to 1/3 of her husband's estate upon his death. No written will had to specify that amount. As a result of the dower rights of a married woman, early land deeds almost always mention the name of a man's wife because she had a legal interest in any land being sold or purchased. In fact, a woman had "veto power" over the sale of land by her husband. Under the English system, a married woman could not own land in her own name; but with her dower rights, she could veto the sale of the land. Many early deed transcripts will include an affidavit in which a wife was interviewed privately by the court clerk to determine whether or not she was in favor of the sale.

ONE-WEEK SALE on Selected Land Records--Books & CDs
(Sale prices in effect until 11:59 PM, EDT, Monday, March 10, 2008)

The eight books and CDs described below illustrate the genealogical potential of American land records. The books typify the variety of land records. For example, Lloyd Bockstruck's extraordinary collection of colonial land bounties took years to assemble. Volume I of "Western New York Land Transactions" is a unique collection of land entries for Upstate New York that were generated by the Holland Land Colony. Clifford Neal Smith's "Federal Land Series" calendars all assignments of land records recorded by all federal land offices in the Old Northwest and Southeast territorial districts of the U.S. (excluding war bounties and land company sales) from 1788 and 1814. Still other featured volumes include land records for the then-new Indiana Territory. The three CDs, in whole or in part, image the pages of books that contain many of the earliest land entries for the colony/state in question (New Jersey, North Carolina, or South Carolina).

We hope that some of these land records on CD will help you in your research. Be sure to take advantage of this one-week sale, which expires at 11:59 PM, EDT, Monday, March 10, 2008.

WESTERN NEW YORK LAND TRANSACTIONS, 1804-1824. Extracted from the Archives of the Holland Land Company

The Holland Land Company was a stock corporation formed by six Dutch banking houses for the purpose of buying land in New York. By 1797, the Company had purchased some 3.3 million acres of land in western New York, west of the Genesee River. Known as the Holland Land Purchase, all this land was sold off by 1839. This work is an index to the records--the Land Tables--of the Holland Land Company from their inception in 1804 until 1824. Also covered are the land transactions in Morris' Reserve and a tract of land known as the 40,000-Acre Tract, both east of the Purchase.

Touching on some 40,000 individual land transactions, the extracts given here provide each purchaser's name, location of the purchase, date of the transaction, type of transaction, and a citation to the original source and microfilm. The area covered extends from Genesee County west to the counties of Erie, Chautauqua, and Cattaraugus, covering such towns as Buffalo and Batavia.

BOUNTY AND DONATION LAND GRANTS in British Colonial America

This is Mr. Lloyd Bockstruck's latest book. When viewed in tandem with his Revolutionary War bounty land book, it closes the circle on all bounty lands awarded either by the British government or by our newly independent states between 1607 and the aftermath of the Revolutionary War.

All 6,500 soldiers known to have received land grants for their participation in the numerous conflicts with the French and their Indian allies, as well as in various colonial insurrections, are listed here with details about their place and dates of service, rank, military campaigns, location of bounty land grants and donation land grants, acreage, and, most importantly, assignment of title to heirs, relatives, and friends.

FEDERAL LAND SERIES. In Four Volumes

One of the first sources of land records the researcher should consult is Clifford Neal Smith's four-volume FEDERAL LAND SERIES (originally published in five parts). Volumes 1 and 3 calendar all assignments of land records recorded by all federal land offices in the "Old Northwest" and Southeast territorial districts of the U.S. (excluding war bounties and land company sales) from 1788 and 1814. These volumes are arranged chronologically according to the assignment of tracts, followed by indexes to names, tracts, and subjects. Volume 2 picks up all persons assigned land by the U.S. government from 1799 to 1835 on the basis of their Revolutionary War service. Volume 4, originally published in two parts, concerns non-federal bounty land warrants issued in the Virginia Military District of Ohio to more than 22,000 persons based on Revolutionary War service.

One of the great virtues of this set is that it names and follows the movements of persons who lived in sparsely populated sections of the new American nation BEFORE they would appear in the federal census. In all, the FEDERAL LAND SERIES identifies 50,000 individuals found among early American land records. Was $200.00/set Now $165.00/set

INDIANA LAND ENTRIES. Volume 1: Cincinnati District, 1801-1840

The earliest land records of Indiana Territory go back to 1801, when Indiana was under the authority of the federal land district in Cincinnati, Ohio. The earliest tract books, which are transcribed here, extend from April 1801 to August 1840. The area covered is mainly a district known as the "wedge" or "gore," and it comprises all of the present Indiana counties of Ohio, Dearborn, Union, and Wayne; most of Switzerland, Fayette, Franklin, and Randolph; and a tiny section of Jay. The records copied here give the names of about 10,000 purchasers of land, as well as the specific location of their land and the date of the record.

INDIANA LAND ENTRIES. Volume 2, Part 1: Vincennes District, 1807-1877

This volume covers approximately the central third of the Vincennes District, comprising all of the present Indiana counties of Daviess, Gibson, Knox, Martin, Pike, and more than half of Monroe and Lawrence. Beginning in 1807 and extending as late as 1877, the records transcribed here give the names of about 12,000 purchasers of land as well as the specific location of their land and the date of the record.

COLONIAL NEW JERSEY Source Records, 1600s to 1800s (CD)

This Family Archive CD includes the records of approximately 330,000 persons in a unique collection of church, court, marriage, land, military, and probate records. Made up of nine New Jersey reference works, this CD is the entry point for genealogical research in colonial New Jersey. Additionally, in light of the missing New Jersey census schedules for 1790-1820, this CD is probably the most important finding-aid available in this or any other format.

EARLY NORTH CAROLINA SETTLERS (CD)

Comprising a basic library of North Carolina genealogy, this Family Archive CD names some 200,000 individuals who lived in North Carolina during the 1700s and 1800s. It consists of numerous volumes of marriage records, death records, land records, historical sketches, and biographies. Combining personal recollections and biographies with source records and local histories, this CD contains a perfect blend of genealogical records and family history easily accessed by a single electronic index. Among the unique resources assembled here is the famous periodical edited by James Hathaway, the "North Carolina Historical and Genealogical Register," which contains 2,000 pages crammed with data on North Carolina's Old Albemarle region.

FEATURED BOOKS & CDs for March

"The Family History Research Toolkit," a new CD-ROM publication created by genealogist Michael Hait, is our most unique new title for March. Comprised of over a score of fill-in-the-blank genealogy forms (basic, census traction, household tracker, and miscellaneous), this terrific CD allows you to enter your findings onto pre-designed spreadsheets and save them directly onto your computer. (You can also print them out as blank forms and enter your information by hand, if you prefer.)

Other CDs featured in March are chock-full of source records and/or compiled genealogies pertaining to early families of New York, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, and the states of the Deep South.

On the book scene, we can offer a host of classic reprints in the field of genealogy and local history. Kip Sperry's "Reading Early American Handwriting" is back by popular demand. So is Ann Lainhart's guide to one of our most valuable but under-used sources, state census records. "Kinship: It's All Relative," by Jackie Smith Arnold, can set everyone straight on virtually any matter concerning consanguinity.

Our patrons who missed out on Douglas Richardson's two mammoth contributions to royal/noble genealogy will be pleased to learn that both tomes, (1) "Plantagenet Ancestry: A Study in Colonial and Medieval Families" and (2) "Magna Carta Ancestry: A Study in Colonial and Medieval Families," are available again, albeit in short supply. Two smaller works in this field by Frederick Lewis Weis--"Ancestral Roots of Certain American Colonists Who Came to America before 1700, Eighth Edition" and "The Magna Charta Sureties, 1215, Fifth Edition"--are also in print again.

Rounding out our March titles are reprints of genealogy standards covering Rhode Island pioneers, early German (and in particular Lutheran) settlers of colonial Pennsylvania, Scottish emigrants to Barbados, and more.

Following is a complete list of our featured titles for March. Immediately below is a link to the page on our website where you'll find short descriptions of each:

EARLY KENTUCKY TAX RECORDS from "The Register of the Kentucky Historical Society"

Among the many historic documents that were lost when the British burned the Capitol in Washington during the War of 1812 were the first two censuses of Kentucky, the earliest one compiled while Kentucky was still a part of Virginia. Owing to the destruction of these census records, genealogists doing research in Kentucky have been obliged to reconstruct the lost data from a number of related records, particularly tax records. Those printed here represent all the tax lists ever published in "The Register of the Kentucky Historical Society" and are among the earliest Kentucky tax records in existence. These tax lists give the names of about 12,000 taxpayers, their counties of residence, and the number of persons and chattels attached to their households from 20 Kentucky counties.

THE LOST TRIBES OF NORTH CAROLINA. Part I: Index and Digest to Hathaway's "North Carolina Historical and Genealogical Register"

Compiled between 1900 and 1903, James Hathaway's 1,700-page "North Carolina Historical and Genealogical Register" is widely regarded as the supreme collection of genealogical source materials on the Old Albemarle region of North Carolina. Although a substantial amount of data appearing in the "Register" was arranged in alphabetical order from the outset--the marriage bonds and lists of Revolutionary soldiers, for example--and is therefore not covered by this index, it was left to Worth S. Ray to prepare an index to the remainder of the Hathaway work. More important, Ray's indispensable subject and name index to the "Register" is a compendium of information in its own right, providing new as well as extended family data, citations to other published authorities, and copious notes and extrapolations. The main entries in the "Index and Digest" alone pertain to more than 5,000 persons.

HEADS OF FAMILIES at the First Census of the United States Taken in the Year 1790: MARYLAND and CONNECTICUT

The surviving 1790 U.S. census records were published by the Bureau of the Census in 1907 and 1908. The 12 published volumes contain the names of the heads of about 400,000 families, with information concerning their place of residence, size of their families, and the approximate ages of male family members. Each volume is arranged by county and, in some cases, by minor subdivisions of counties. Each volume is indexed separately, so the researcher has only a single alphabet to consult for each state. Heads of families, arranged alphabetically under each county and district, are listed with the following information after each name: number of free white males of 16 years and upward; number of free white males under 16 years; number of free white females; number of all other free persons; number of slaves.

SCOTS IN THE WEST INDIES, 1707-1857. Volume II

The work at hand is the second volume in this series. It is the outgrowth of Mr. Dobson's researches in the archives and libraries of Scotland, England, and Denmark. Arranged alphabetically by surname, many of the entries were culled from Scottish newspapers like the "Glasgow Mercury" and the "Greenock Advertiser," in which notices would appear seeking to employ managers and servants. Volume II identifies an additional 2,000 Scotsmen not found in Volume I. Scotsmen are identified by full name, island inhabited, date, and source of the information, and, sometimes, by occupation, parent(s) name(s), education, and vessel upon which he/she arrived.

WHAT'S NEW at the Genealogy Warehouse for March

Is it possible that your missing ancestors were living in New Hampshire at the outbreak of the American Revolution?

Did they back the losing side in the conflict, ultimately packing their belongings and emigrating to Canada?

Or were your ancestors Irishmen/women who departed the Emerald Isle for the greener pastures of 19th-century America?

If any of these questions strikes a chord, be sure to consider the three books we have added to the Genealogy Warehouse this month, our discount department for genealogy books.

Speaking of the Emerald Isle, with St. Patrick's Day on the horizon we are also highlighting a number of other Irish titles available in the Genealogy Warehouse. For example, you can choose from our core collection of Irish passenger records from the Irish Famine era, as well as other ship records for Northern Ireland and the classic two-volume bibliography on Irish and Scotch-Irish genealogy.

INHABITANTS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, 1776

In 1776, at the outset of the American Revolution, the New Hampshire Committee of Safety directed that all males over the age of 21 sign the Association Test--a kind of loyalty oath to the Patriot cause. This resulted in a unique census of the adult male population inasmuch as the names of both signers and non-signers were recorded, and it is the most comprehensive list of New Hampshire residents available before the first federal census of 1790. Previously available in two separate, unindexed booklets, the present publication has placed all the names--well over 9,000--in one alphabetical sequence to enable the researcher to find a person and his town of residence at a glance. Was $18.00 Now $9.95

EARLY ONTARIO SETTLERS

This sourcebook contains official records of the early settlers of Upper Canada, or Ontario. The core of the work consists of two provisioning, or ration, lists for 1784 and 1786, which provide the name of the head of household, place of settlement, and statistical details of the family. Most of the settlers named in the records were from the American colonies, and a very substantial proportion were from New York, especially from the Albany area and the Mohawk Valley.

GOING TO AMERICA

To gain a fuller perspective on the life and times of your 19th-century emigrant ancestors, Terry Coleman's masterpiece, GOING TO AMERICA, is must reading. Author Terry Coleman recounts the Atlantic crossing from 1846, when many emigrants still sailed in old brigs, through 1850, when they were mostly crossing on the big American sailing packets out of Liverpool. Coleman then brings the reader to 1855, by which time the introduction of steamship travel had made Atlantic passage in steerage tolerable. Told by a brilliant storyteller, GOING TO AMERICA is a saga you won't want to put down.

THE FAMINE IMMIGRANTS. Lists of Irish Immigrants Arriving at the Port of New York, 1846-1851

The blight that struck the Irish potato crop in the winter of 1845-46 brought ruin to countless tenant farmers and laborers, reducing almost all of Ireland to poverty. As a result, between 1846 and 1851 more than a million men, women, and children immigrated to the U.S. and Canada, mostly through the port of New York. The seven-volume FAMINE IMMIGRANTS series was conceived for the purpose of enumerating all Irish passengers who entered the port of New York between 1846 and 1851.

The passenger lists found in THE FAMINE IMMIGRANTS are arranged by ship and date of arrival in New York. Each person is identified with respect to age, sex, occupation, and family relationships, where such was indicated in the original manifests. Additionally, every volume boasts a complete-name index.

Here is the availability status of the seven volumes in this series: Volume I is available at full price in a paperback edition. Volumes II, VI, and VII are temporarily out of print. The remaining in-print volumes, which are available in the original cloth edition, are described below:

RETURN OF OWNERS OF LAND in Ireland 1876

In 1873, clerks of Ireland's various Poor Law Unions drew up lists of the owners of land of one acre or more from the property valuation and rate books in their custody. These lists, forming the basis of this book, include the names of small landowners as well as large--owners of modest acres as well as great estates--and they stand as a census of a significant proportion of the population of Ireland in 1876.
